MRS. BECKWITH SAYS "YES," AND TELLS THE REASON WHY.

LAW WITH THE WOMEN, SHE SAYS

The Amendments to the Constitution. Benjamin Butler and Other People Back Them-Did the Word "Male" Creep Into the Election Code by s Compiler's Mistake?

Mrs. Emma Beckwith, that eminent Brooklyn leader of the female suffrage movement, whose frail political bark was during the past campaign so rudely swamped upon the relentless sea of masculine suffrage, lectured upon her favorite theme before a large audience at the hall of the Woman's Temperance Union. No. 2, at South Third street and Bedford avenue, last evening. Mrs. Harriet Gaston, the President, introduced Mrs. Beckwith, who was received with favor by the clapping of many

"I have been invited, "began the fair speaker, " to speak to you about the best means to obtain maneipation of the wives and mothers of this nation, or about what is commonly known woman's suffrage.' Is it not strange that in thi enlightened age a speech of this kind should be a necessity? And is it not strange that here in the great Empire State, where women pay taxes on millions of dollars worth of property, and where in the great city of New York above four-fifths of the women population protect and support themselves, that a plea in their behalf is called for? To me the strangest and most wnaccountable part of the whole subject is that women themselves hug their claim and keep silent. If only they would combine and organize, as have the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, how much power they might wield. Now, why ought woman to yote, and of what use would the ballot be to her? Lot us be houset, fair and square with this subject and deal with it as 'it deserves. For I tell you, and you cannot deny it, this is the question of the day—all other ists and isms mu-t give way before this great question, the question of the liberation of this country, if we would have the country fulfil all of its possibilities. thi enlightened age a speech of this kind should

MAYOR HART AND THE WIRES.

Boston Aldermen Told of a Method for Preventing Electric Fires.

SPECIAL TO THE WORLD. Bosrov, Mars., Dec. 2,-The subject of Mayor Hart's message to the Aldermen to-day was "Electric Wires." He said:

"The Bedford street fire of Nov. 28, which destroyed precious lives and millions in property, is suspected to be the direct result of lowpower wires coming in contact with a highly charged wire. Should this suspicion prove unfounded, the fact still remains that ordinary telegraph and telephone wires are an immediate source of danger the moment they touch an electric light or an electric power wire, such a thing as may happen in any and all parts of the city. This crossing of wires is the greatest danger to property with which we have to contend. Putting all wires underground is apt to increase the danger, because it brings all sorts of wires into close proximity.

'The true remedy is known to electricians and fire insurance companies and consists in a safety-fuse, or fusible alloy, inserted in every telephone, electric or other wire just before it enters a building. The cost of this contrivance is trivial and the protection it affords is almost absointe in that it breaks the continuity of conductors when these become heated up to the danger point. A great, constant and increasing danger can thus be averted, provided your honorable body will pass an ordinance, with a penalty attached for every case of disobedience, requiring every telephone, telegraph and other electric wirs that enters any fullding in the city of Boston to be provided with a safety-fuse or fusible alloy satisfactory to the Fire Commissioners or the Superintendent of the Fire Alarm."

The measage was referred to a committee. the Fire Alarm."

The message was referred to a committee. The Fire Commissioners sent the Board this little piece of wisdom:

Electricity has become the most public and subtle formed distributing fire, and is the most dreaded factor that the firemen have to meet in the problem of extinguishing fires."
